This guitar was built last year, hence the lower price, but has only been played at festivals and for assessment by myself. Hence the lower price.

The body size is the same as the Romanillos '73 plan, but the bracing in this guitar is based on a Hauser plan.

It is louder than the spruce guitars, being cedar topped, with good balance between treble and basses. As expected there is a little less clarity and separation than with spruce, giving it a warm darker tone, though it is not as obviously cedar in its voice as some.

This guitar has Gotoh Premium tuners, and comes with a Hiscox Pro2 case included in the price. There is no VAT to add.
